Hero Tales (Vol 1)

Synopsis

Timeless Lessons for Families From Great Christians of the Past Drawn from the lives of fifteen key Christian heroes, Hero Tales is a beautifully illustrated treasury of forty-five exciting and educational readings designed to help foster Christian character qualities in families with elementary-age children. This inspiring collection presents a short biography and three true stories for each hero, including: Amy Carmichael, Martin Luther, Dwight L. Moody, Samuel Morris, Harriet Tubman, John Wesley. Whether read together at family devotions or alone, Hero Tales is an ideal way to acquaint children ages six to twelve with historically important Christians while imparting valuable lessons. DAVE & NETA JACKSON are full-time writers and editors whose talented work on the bestselling TRAILBLAZER BOOKS has earned them numerous awards as well as world-wide acclaim. They bring their gifts for meticulous historical research and carefully crafted stories to the pages of Hero Tales.

Dave and Neta Jackson are full-time writers and editors whose talented work on the TRAILBLAZER BOOKS has earned them numerous awards and worldwide acclaim. They are the parents of two adult children and make their home in Illinois.

We have been reading a story each morning at breakfast, and we all love them. Usually the kids request we do another, and another, until I cut them off. They are 8, 6, and 3 years old. We sometimes lose the little one, but that's ok, she's still hearing it and can often tell me things that happened in the story later when I ask.

A favorite for my children. They are always eager for our evening devotion because they love the heroic stories.

Our family LOVES the Hero Tales books! We do "Missionary Monday" at our house. We read a story (sometimes two) and then we talk about needs of anyone who is on our hearts, trying to focus on missionaries serving around the world. Then we each pray for the person the Lord brings to our mind. I really like the fact that each hero is read about over 4-5 stories instead of a new person each story. We have been doing this for four years now. I hope our kids will also carry on the tradition with their kids.

Coming from a homeschooling mama....Great way to teach history from a true and spiritual perspective. Loved it!

Absolutely LOVE this book!! I am tired of culture's view of celebrities and heroes. This book contains amazing stories of real heroes and the odds they faced, developing character and wisdom from hard places!! My children really love the stories and beg me to read more!! What more could I ask??

We love these! Geared for kids at least 6 years old, these are great stories with conversation starting questions at the end of each story.

As a child, I was inspired by a similar collection of true stories of Christian heroes for young people called The Adventurers. Not being one for fiction, I devoured biographies of people who attempted and achieved great things for God. Needless to say, I was thrilled to discover for my own children a brand new series of stories (in four volumes) like the ones that inspired me so many years ago. Every evening after supper we sit down as a family and read one of the stories. The questions and Bible verses after each chapter (three chapters per hero) make an effective and meaningful family devotional time. Our oldest who is 10 years old cannot wait to hear the next story!
